

Joyce Paschall, CAE, CMP-HC, is Director of Education and Meetings for the American College of Occupational and Environmental Medicine (ACOEM), a medical specialty society based in Elk Grove, IL. She is responsible for the content development, logistical planning and execution of the annual conference, educational courses and other learning activities, and oversees the college's Continuing Medical Education (CME) program.

She is also an occasional instructor in the hospitality management program for Kendall College in Chicago. Prior to ACOEM she worked for association management firms in the Chicago area, managing medical societies and trade organizations in various fields.

Joyce has over 25 years of experience as an association manager and meeting planner. She's a long-time, active member of many industry organizations and served as president of the Chicago Area Chapter of MPI in 2007-2008. She currently holds volunteer positions with PCMA and ASAE.

In her spare time, she serves on the board of a local senior pet rescue and volunteers as a foster home for older beagles.