Jake Stevens

Jake is the founder of Climastry, a platform empowering organizations to execute world-class sustainability programs. An engineer at heart, he brings a strong technical background to ESG integration after nearly a decade implementing sustainability projects in manufacturing plants across North America; with a futurist twist after managing projects at the tech unicorn, Toast. He's a constituent of the OECD, UNFCCC, and World Economic Forum - bringing multilateral points of consensus home to Chicago so they can be scaled in a local context.
