

Josh Luman Bio

Josh Luman is currently the Vice President of Technology & Data at the Professional Convention Management Association (PCMA) which is the world's largest, most respected and most recognized network of business events strategists. Prior to joining PCMA in 2022 he was a technology leader at the Healthcare Information & Management Systems Society (HIMSS) where he led the IT department in strategy, architecture, design, delivery & support. During his 16 years at HIMSS he also managed technology for over 50 events in 30 different cities in 20 different countries. He is passionate about delivering solutions with high customer impact and business value through engineering excellence.